A sanctuary awaits behind the gates of this Georgian Manor. Over five acres of landscape and gardens, designed by Charles Owen, stretch around the 16,000-square-foot estate. Built by George Sagatov, craftsmanship details like hand-carved ceilings and meticulous stonework bring a timeless quality to the estate. The stone courtyard and the two-story foyer feature marble floors and hand-painted gold leaf accents. The formal living room's ceilings present hand-crafted plaster medallions that pay homage to the Georgian style. Two decadent owners' suites await from the main and second floors. Beyond the stone walls of the manor, the secluded backyard boasts a stone patio, pool, hot tub, stone hearth, and pergola. Beyond the gated fence of the pool stretch gardens and acres of hardwood forests, with walking paths that lead to a stream and waterfall in the heart of the woods. Step into this gorgeous estate and discover the best of luxury living from one of the U.S.'s most coveted zip codes.

Stunning homes and high-end shopping are among McLean's claims to fame, while an outstanding school district and family-friendly environment only bolster its well-deserved reputation. McLean's Farmer's Market offers local bounty to enjoy, while nearby Tysons Corner Center is a haven for lovers of fashion. The Tysons Galleria is for an unmatched luxury shopping experience. Nine parks sprinkled throughout McLean ensure green space is never far away and complement the peaceful atmosphere that is such a pleasant change of pace from nearby bustling Washington. The property offers an abundance of privacy and serenity, while still being in close proximity to Washington D.C.
