the A to Z of Agri in Ireland

'At Agcontacts.com we will provide businesses with finger-tip access to what will be the most diverse and comprehensive agri-directory across the island of Ireland!'"

James Kelly

Specialising in listing and locating agricultural businesses, products and services across the island, the new website will bring together and promote all those working to sustain the success story that is the Irish agri-food sector.

From established enterprises looking to expand their customer and contacts bases, to small, family run organic farmers looking to expand their reach online, Agcontacts.com will be an invaluable tool for all agri-food businesses working in an industry so vital to both the Irish and global economy.

"For a small country Ireland really does punch above its weight when it comes to the international agri-food industry, building and maintaining a strong export market has been key to that success story. Here at Agcontacts.com, we wanted to help all our farm and food-related businesses reach their full potential by providing one central, online resource to showcase their businesses and services to the world.”

The website founder continued: “The agri-food industry is a cornerstone of the Irish economy, producing a significantly higher return than any other sector. It provides close to 160,000 jobs and accounts for around 8% in GDP, bringing in tens of billions into the economy each year.

“Farming isn’t just about economic statistics, though. It’s about people and communities. When we talk about the agri-food sector, we’re often talking about families, heritage, and an all-encompassing way of life.”

“That’s why we’ve been keen to make the site user-friendly for everyone, including smaller businesses who may not have an online presence yet.

“At Agcontacts.com we not only provide businesses with finger-tip access to what will be the most diverse and comprehensive agri-directory in the country, but offer a streamlined SEO web service that even businesses who have yet to embrace the digital world will find extremely user friendly.”

That service will include everything a farm business needs to stand out in the competitive online world, with listings including not only a search-engine-optimised outline of the services offered, but also Google Map locations, helpful photos, clickable contact details, links to social media, external third party links, live opening times and a contact form linked directly to the business.

Listed businesses can also avail of the chance to have their company video promoted on both the main directory home page and on AgContacts.com’s social media channels. On top of this, Agcontacts.com also offer a bespoke directory listing for small agri-businesses who have yet to venture into promoting their products / services online. .

Once listed, businesses can be rest assured their products and services will be easy to find, thanks to industry-specific tags which make searching the directory a breeze.

Agcontacts.com’s website layout allows potential customers to easily navigate the directory to find the specific product or service they seek, while listed businesses can enjoy the benefits of being found by their specific target market at the click of a button.

However, the website plans to be much more than just a directory. It will also feature upcoming farming and agri-food events, in person and online, promote new product launches, and keep Agcontacts.com users up-to-date with the latest industry news.

Meanwhile, those looking to invest, expand or even start out in the agri-food industry can hop over to Agcontacts.com’s sister site, www.farmsforsaleireland.com, where you can search for your dream agri-property in its specialists listings, as well as keeping on top of upcoming agricultural property events including public / online auctions.

Agcontacts.com is striving to become the most extensive directory in the Irish agri-industry, connecting businesses of all shapes and sizes with customers both nationally and internationally.

From large-scale agricultural contractors, machine manufacturers and material suppliers, to veterinary services, horticultural nurseries and fuel suppliers, to mushroom growers, small family dairy farmers and even beekeepers, Agcontacts.com will bring together Irish
