

The Choices: An Adventure in Terror, Treasure, and Romance

Cresting Wave Publishing is Pleased to Present Alan L. Moss' Latest Thriller

SPOKANE, WA, USA, November 2, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Alan L. Moss' thriller plots involve complex schemes to amass power and wealth, often concerning rare substances, innovations, scientific breakthroughs, and exotic locations not well known by the general public. Unconventional settings include New Zealand's Canterbury Plains, Andorra La Vella, Kakabeka Falls, Ontario, and the Yucatan jungles of Mexico.

The Choices: A Treasure Hunt Thriller

His latest offering, "The Choices," is as current as the nation's crisis in white supremacy, hate, and violence. And as historic as the Chicxulub asteroid that crashed into the Yucatan Peninsula, killing most living creatures, including the dinosaurs sixty-six million years ago. The action spans three continents and six nations, offering colorful backdrops for a race to an unprecedented fortune in diamonds.

Based on newly generated NASA measurements and a unique theory, a Ph.D. geology student concludes the Chicxulub asteroid created a fortune in hidden diamonds. When she discovers her business partner and financier is of questionable character, she escapes to Canada to plan an expedition to mine the stones.

Gary Levin arrives in the same Canadian village to mourn the loss of his wife, senselessly murdered during a white supremacist shooting. He soon finds a wounded golden retriever and a flash drive of unknown origin.

Puzzled by information on the flash drive, Levin learns the data could guide mining the fortune in diamonds from Mexico's Yucatan cenotes. Although there is danger diving/mining the waters and evidence of opposition plotting their demise, the lure of the diamonds and the opulence they represent are too much to resist.

Levin and his companions crisscross the globe in a race to obtain the diamonds before the spurned financier and an approaching hurricane can disrupt their efforts.
