The Advocate says, "We want any type of Navy Veteran with mesothelioma to receive the best possible financial compensation results-which might turn out to exceed a million dollars. What makes a navy aircraft carrier so unique is there could have been hundreds of sailors maintaining the ship's engine room, repair shops or who were responsible for ship maintenance. Prior to 1982 sailors like this on a navy aircraft carrier could have had daily exposure to asbestos on the ship, or at a shipyard like Norfolk, Hunters Point or Bremerton.
