homes."

AA Screens & Glass derives its name from Adam Arabie, Wes's father, who started the business in 1987. Wes joined the company in 1997 and enjoyed working alongside his parents until he took over the business operations. "When my Mom and Dad ran the business, they did less volume because it was just a pastime to them. My cousin and secretary, Sharon Baldassaro-Martin, and I built the company into what it is today. I know we would not be where we are today without Sharon's dedication and longevity to the company," he says. Arabie does what it takes to keep the business a family affair, currently employing his wife, cousin, and two grandsons. "We're pretty much, at this point, all family, I'm currently training my grandsons to one day take over the business."

Demand for plexiglass was high during the COVID-19 pandemic.
