

IADA Names David Monacell Chairman and Zipporah Marmor as Vice Chair

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA, USA, November 1, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The International Association of Aircraft Dealers (IADA) has chosen David Monacell as Chairman of the Board and Zipporah Marmor as Vice Chair. Both will serve in those positions for a year. Monacell replaces outgoing chairman Joe Carfagna, Jr., president and CEO of Leading Edge, who becomes Chairman Emeritus.

"The IADA Board of Directors is delighted that David Monacell and Zipporah Marmor have accepted these important leadership positions for the upcoming year," said IADA Executive Director Wayne Starling. "And I am personally honored that they and the other board members have agreed to their added responsibilities to guide the organization going forward," he added

Chairman Monacell is partner in CFSJets, business aircraft broker located in Charlotte, North Carolina with locations trough the South. He has over 20 years of private aviation sales experience and he has been a partner in CFSJets since 2013. Throughout his career, he has held senior sales positions with both manufacturers and dealers, representing multiple new product lines

Vice-Chair Marmor is Vice President, Aircraft Transactions at ACASS, headquartered in Montreal, Canada with representatives in Europe, Asia, India, and the Mideast/Africa. Marmor, too, has more than 20 years of global business aviation experience spanning sales, management, & marketing. She is part of the ACASS' international sales team and has helped drive the company's global expansion and continued growth in vital capacities.

Rounding out the IADA officers are Board Secretary Toby Smith, Vice President of JB&A Aviation, and Treasurer Phil Winters, Vice President - Aircraft Sales & Charter Management for Western Aircraft. In addition, serving as Board Members at large are Peter Antonenko, Chief Operating
