Increase in public and privately funded skateboard parks, which can now be found in many cities and towns drive the market growth. Ski resorts now cater to snowboarders by building terrain parks, provide corporate sponsorships, and media performances. Growth in the market is anticipated on account of increase in population, rise in disposable income, integration of technology in sports equipment, and increase in participation of women in sports across the world also fuel the growth of the market. New technologies, such as 3D motion sensing are adopted to track the user movements, as well as to attract the younger, tech savvy generation to adopt alternative sports.
