Anis Sabeti, COO, Nobis Rehabilitation Partners

Partners, the management company for Milwaukee Rehabilitation Hospital an inpatient rehabilitation hospital, has selected Bridget Shaffer to serve as the new hospital's CEO.

Shaffer has served as a leader and has opened three hospitals in her 28 years in healthcare. Her clinical expertise as a nurse has been the foundation for her leadership success in clinical, business, and marketing operations for inpatient and outpatient care sites across the Chicago and Milwaukee regions. Shaffer's nursing career began in perioperative services. She later held management positions in perioperative, emergency services, and ancillary clinical departments.

"Shaffer's strong clinical background coupled with her operational savvy in opening new builds made our decision easy to choose her as the CEO for Milwaukee Rehab. We feel very fortunate that we have found a leader who is grounded not only clinically but leverages a lean methodology and understands the construction process," said Anis Sabeti, Nobis Rehab Partners COO.

As the hospital construction is completed in the next few months, Shaffer is hiring her leadership team, collaborating with physician groups, area hospital providers, and people throughout the community around the rehab services most in need. Once the hospital team of physical therapists, occupational therapists, speech-language therapists, nurses, and the support team are hired, Shaffer will guide the hospital team through the new hospital's opening with support from Nobis Rehab Partners. "I'm excited to build the hospital care team and leverage my previous experiences in opening a new rehab hospital to provide the best quality inpatient rehabilitation services to people in the Greenfield and Milwaukee communities," Shaffer said.

Shaffer holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Nursing, dual master's degrees in Business Administration and Healthcare Administration. She is a licensed Registered Nurse and is also a Certified Operating Room Nurse (CNOR). Shaffer is a Fellow American College Healthcare Executives (FACHE) and has achieved several awards in physician partnership models and patient satisfaction.
