

Femtech Market Statistics, Industry Growth and Demand Analysis Research Report by 2027

Owing to the growing expenditure and product production, Femtech Market is expected to be experiencing robust growth over the projected period.

VANCOUVER, BC, CANADA, November 9, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Femtech or gel imaging system is a type of laboratory device required for visualization, analysis and documentation of proteins, nucleic acid, and antibodies in different types of gel media, which include acrylamide, agarose, Polyvinylidene Fluoride (PVDF), and nitrocellulose gels.

Demand from the Femtech Market is motivated mainly by the growing burden of both chronic and infectious diseases among the world's female population. An increase in the number of health problems relating to women would stimulate competition for technologically innovative healthcare solutions. Growing women's emphasis on reproductive health and sexual empowerment in developing economies would further encourage development in the industry.
