The full-service Physical Therapy clinic focuses on its patient's needs and full recovery by restoring movement, improving function, and helping those recovering from surgery or an accident. Located on the corner of Frank Lloyd Wright and 100th St. Foothills will be open Mondays through Fridays from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The Northeast Valley is growing tremendously, we believe this is an ideal location, and it is going to be a convenient and patient-focused clinic.”

Adam Halseth

The clinic will offer free assessments to anyone concerned with an injury and are curious if physical therapy should be used during treatment.

Physical Therapist and Clinic Director Adam Halseth believes everybody deserves to move and be used at an optimal level. "I take immense pride to do what I can to get you at that level. I treat the entire body, not just the sight of injury. Whether recovering from a surgery or sports-related injury, I figure out why you move the way you do and how to get you back to doing the activities you love," says Adam.

"The Northeast Valley and particularly this area in Scottsdale is growing tremendously, and we are extremely proud to be able to serve the members of the community. We believe this is an ideal location, and it is going to be a convenient and patient-focused clinic."

Over the last 21 years, Foothills Sports Medicine Physical Therapy has helped more than 500,000 patients get out of pain and back to feeling the way they were before they were injured.

Foothills now has 26 clinics conveniently located throughout the Valley.
