

WrapRoof® Saves Historical Buildings from Total Destruction

Precision Construction and Roofing uses the WrapRoof® Product and Protects Historical Buildings from Further Damage

MIAMI, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES,
November 11, 2021 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- In the aftermath of Hurricane Ida, the WrapRoof® solution was the preferred method of temporary roofing to secure damaged historical buildings. Hurricane Ida made landfall in Louisiana as a category 4 hurricane with winds of 150 mph. As a result, properties—specifically roof structures—sustained significant damage that could only be secured with the WrapRoof® solution.

Historical buildings such as St. Leo Catholic Church, make up an important part of Louisiana’s history as well as the daily lives of many citizens. With over 40 United States Patent Claims for its innovative solution for protecting damaged roofs, The WrapRoof® solution used by Precision Construction and Roofing, the number one Ludowici tile Installer in America, to secure St. Leo Catholic Church along with several other historical properties throughout the area. The ability to install this market-leading temporary roofing solution without adding additional damage or sandbags set the WrapRoof® solution apart.

The winds of Hurricane Ida caused significant damage to the Ludowici tiles that protect the roof of St. Leo Catholic Church. As a consequence of the current material shortages, replacement tiles will take 6+ months to arrive. In the meantime, the historical building will remain leak-free for one full year due to the WrapRoof® solution installation.

“It’s important to quickly preserve historical properties from further damage with a product that will work until the permanent materials arrive,” says Eric Hunter, Precision Construction and Roofing owner. “We only trust the WrapRoof Solution to secure our projects.”
