-- Nationally recognized toxic baby formula lawyer Timothy L. Miles of the Law Offices of Timothy L. Miles, announces that a Louisiana woman
and her mother have filed a product liability lawsuit (Cause No. 2021L

001042) alleging Similac and Enfamil caused necrotizing enterocolitis (NEC), a severe intestinal disorder which required emergency surgery shortly after birth, and resulted in life-long injuries.

We urge anyone with a child that has developed NEC as a result of their baby formula
to contact us immediately”

Timothy L. Miles

The complaint was brought by Alicia Wyrick and her mother, Larhonda Turner, in the Illinois Circuit Court for Madison County, pursuing damages from Mead Johnson and Abbott Laboratories for complications caused by use of their popular cow’s milk-based formula among premature infants.

If your child has developed NEC as a result of their baby formula, please click here to contact us.

What is Necrotizing Enterocolitis (NEC)?

Necrotizing enterocolitis is a digestive disease that occurs primarily in premature infants and can cause inflammation of the intestinal lining, which can lead to serious infections. In such cases, the inflamed intestinal wall is eventually eroded away, which allows bacteria to enter the intestinal tract and jeopardize the health of the infant. Most infants survive the disease with
