

Technical Surveillance Countermeasures Market Growth, Analysis, Share, Company Profiles and Forecast by 2027

The global technical surveillance countermeasures market size is expected to reach USD 225.9 Million in 2028

SURREY, BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA, November 17, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The global technical surveillance countermeasures market size is expected to reach USD 225.9 Million in 2028 and register a steady CAGR over the forecast period, according to latest analysis by Emergen Research. Market revenue growth is driven significantly by rising demand for modern surveillance technologies, growing adoption of espionage device detecting systems in various sectors such as commercial, government, aerospace, defense, and others, and continuous investments by governments and private investors for technological research initiatives. Technical surveillance countermeasures or TSCM solution offers detection of different surveillance devices and hazards, and identification of technical security weaknesses. Installation of such devices in a particular area or building ensures that there is absolutely nothing that will compromise the privacy and confidential information.

Technical Surveillance Countermeasures Market Size – USD 152.9 Million in 2020, Market Growth – at a CAGR of 4.9%, Market Trend – Advancements in security infrastructure. In August 2020, HEICO acquired two surveillance countermeasures companies, Intelligent Devices, Inc. and Transformational Security, LLC. This acquisition helped HEICO to develop new technologies and expanded product offerings for its customers. Growing requirement for modern surveillance technologies, especially in government and defense sectors, is a key factor driving revenue growth of the global market.

This system not only identifies and locates espionage devices, but also looks after various additional areas where an enterprise could lose some vital information through illicit eavesdropping devices or systems such as hidden cameras, listening devices, electronic bugs, cellular interception, Bluetooth interception, burst transmitters, laser microphones, and other devices used for such purposes. The coronavirus outbreak has led to drastic changes in the current Technical Surveillance Countermeasures business landscape, limiting the growth opportunities for various manufacturers and buyers for the next few year.
