MIAMI BEACH, FLORIDA, US, November 21, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Amir Mohit-Kermani, DC, a South Florida chiropractor and owner of Advanced Chiropractic and Medical Centers in North Miami Beach, Hollywood and Ft. Lauderdale, today announced a donation to Clean Miami Beach, a non-profit launched in 2019 by Executive Director Sophie Ringel with a mission to keep the community and natural habitats free of garbage and other harmful land pollutants with a focus on single-use plastics.

"I am thrilled to receive the generous donation from Dr. Amir Mohit-Kermani," said Sophie Ringel, Executive Director of Clean Miami Beach. "With these new funds, our organization will be able to continue work teaching our Classroom on the Sand program for Miami youth about the necessity of eliminating parks and beach pollution."

Amir Mohit-Kermani joined Clean Miami Beach to help pick up trash in the Collins Park neighborhood of Miami Beach. Together with 120 volunteers, he joined in picking up 500 pounds of trash, 300 plastic water bottles and about 1,000 cigarette butts in a three-block radius of Collins Park.

"Sadly, Miami Beach is becoming a destination known for litter and trash-filled beaches, and this needs to change," said Amir Mohit-Kermani, chiropractor and owner of Advanced Chiropractic & Medical Centers in South Florida. "I'm so happy that my donation to Clean Miami Beach helps Ms. Ringel realize her commitment to maintaining cleaner parks and beaches and also helps fund her program to teach our kids about the importance of doing so. Each of us should do our part to contribute — from volunteering time or by giving a small donation whenever they can.”

“The Collins Park neighborhood cleanup was a tremendous success,” said Sophie Ringel, Executive Director of Clean Miami Beach. “Considering we cleaned the same location one week prior, and picked up 270 pounds of trash, it’s a shocking result. We’re so grateful to our volunteers who help make this happen week after week.”
