Overview:

According to IMARC Group, the global halal food market reached a value of US$ 1.9 Trillion in 2020. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to grow at a CAGR of 11.3% during 2021-2026. Halal foods are food products that are strictly prepared to comply with the Islamic dietary law to be permissible for consumption by Muslims. According to the law, these food items should not comprise prohibited ingredients, including pork, blood, alcohol and other intoxicants. Additionally, the consumption of meat of carnivorous animals is also not permitted. Moreover, halal food products must be prepared and stored in separate utensils that have been cleansed according to the Islamic dietary guidelines. Consequently, halal foods are considered to be clean, fresh, toxin-free, and a healthier food option among the masses, which is contributing to their sales across the globe.
