Overview:

According to IMARC Group, the global cement market size reached a volume of 4.91 Billion Tons in 2020. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to grow at a CAGR of around 5% during 2021-2026. Significant growth in construction activities due to the rapid population expansion and the increasing need for residential and commercial spaces are majorly driving the demand for cement. The rising environmental concerns have further prompted top cement manufacturers to introduce green cement, which aids in reducing the exploitation of natural raw materials. This represents one of the significant factors providing lucrative opportunities to manufacturers operating in the industry. They are also embracing the digitization and sustainability trends to gain a competitive edge in the market.

Currently, key players in the cement market are introducing improved production methods and formulations to lower carbon dioxide (CO₂) emissions during the manufacturing process. In addition to this, manufacturers are extensively investing in research and development (R&D) activities to launch innovative, low-carbon technologies and scientifically engineered products that cater to new-age construction activities. Moreover, the emergence of smart cement plants integrated with advanced analytics (AA) algorithms and automated tracking of overall-equipment-effectiveness (OEE) software to improve yield, quality, throughput, and energy efficiency are creating a positive outlook for the market.
