Travel authority, Matthew Keezer, recommends Alta for its large number of tourist attractions that are available for your outdoor enjoyment. These include; biking, hiking and fishing. While the current population is approximately 20,000 people, there has been a steady rise in its population. This equates to more attractions for those who are visiting here on vacation. For example, there have been a number of restaurants and shopping locations that have recently opened and more tourist accommodations are currently being planned. The rich cultural history comes courtesy of the numerous farms and fishing locations as well as unique attractions such as rock carvings that date to the 60s.

Matthew Keezer also points out that Alta was recognized as a UNESCO world heritage site in 1985. And for those who have placed viewing the Northern Lights on their bucket list, then Alta is the place to go. Not only that, but because of its far North location, you can enjoy longer days in the summer, which lends itself to more outdoor activities! But that isn't to say you won't have a great time during the winter months as well. Every winter activity imaginable is available here such as snowmobiling and skiing.

Things to Do in Alta, Norway

Matthew Keezer advises tourists to check out these attractions and activities to do when visiting Alta:

☐The Northern Lights – This is one attraction that draws visitors from all around the world. There are also accommodations and amenities (dining, etc.) that cater to this major event. It's suggested that you engage the assistance of a local who has the knowledge and experience needed to take the best photos of this colorful phenomenon.

☐Visit the Alta Canyon – This canyon is one of the most sizable in northern Europe and can be viewed via a guided tour bus or it can be accessed by canoe or river boat. The best time to visit the canyon is during the summer months when you can enjoy the extended daylight hours.

Matthew Keezer wants to let potential tourists know that this is the best time to begin planning your next vacation to Alta, Norway. This way, you can enjoy the fewer crowds of other tourists who are eager to enjoy Alta's wide selection of activities. Whether you are planning to go alone or with friends and/or loved ones, make this your number one choice for that much-deserved getaway.
