Mobile Deployable Communications 2022 Conference

The poster features a soldier in full combat gear, including a helmet and goggles, kneeling in a desert environment. The soldier is holding a radio to their mouth with one hand and a laptop with the other. The background is a hazy, rocky desert landscape. The text is overlaid on the image in a clean, sans-serif font.

- Themes from the UK's Integrated Review and Defence Command Paper include persistent engagement, being more globally responsive; and the increasing role for small teams, special operations, and assistance forces
- Taking that demand and a look at the satellite communications technology defence uses, together with lessons and perspectives from users, deliverers, and industry
- Views on what technology and business opportunities defence can look to exploit in the coming years

The two-day agenda is available at <http://www.mobiledeployable.com/pr4>.
