The global pandemic has significantly hampered the growth of the bidet market as consumer demand continues to decline due to the closure of all hotels and malls.”

Shankar Bhandalkar

The bidet type mounted on the floor is pedestal styled, mostly found in old buildings and traditional bathrooms. Electronic bidet type includes a type of bidet with more features such as adjustable water pressure, temperature, and dry air, on the other hand, non-electronic bidet is quite simple.

Development of smart bidets is one of the critical emerging trends in the market for bidets. Smart bidet systems minimize the need for manual controls, thus they boost user comfort and convenience.

These bidets come with functionalities such as automatic temperature control of the seat, automatic control of the water temperature, automatic control of the water pressure, and effectively reduce water use. These benefits are expected to drive market growth driven by demand for smart bidets.

The increase in urbanization, high disposable income, use of luxury accessories in high-end hotels are the factors anticipated to boost the growth of bidet market.

This encourages manufacturers to produce bathroom accessories such as bidets, which help maintain cleanliness and personal hygiene for the older population. Besides, demand for bidets as a major source of personal hygiene is anticipated to continue to rise due to rise of arthritis cases and other health concerns.
