“The lineup at Art Basel is incredible. So many talented people are coming together to celebrate the potential of NFTs,” Teitel said, “The NFT space is young and is going through all the usual growing pains. I was looking for people who were figuring out how to separate the wheat from the chaff, which is how I found NFTY, Inc..”

Teitel is a founding artist at NFTY, Inc. NFTY's mission is to “reward excellence” by incentivizing quality in judgment and creation. Throughout his career, Teitel has leveraged his art to further philanthropic causes. This has included raising awareness about no-kill shelters and dolphin-safe tuna fishing practices. He has also been instrumental in raising ten of millions of dollars for runaways in North and South America.

“We are ecstatic to have someone with Alan’s accomplishments and charitable spirit,” said NFTY, Inc. co-founder Alyze Sam, “we are looking forward to many years of fruitful collaboration.”

His next set of NFTs will benefit children in need around the world, as well as first responders and veterans. Teitel’s works are being showcased at two private events at Art Basel in Miami in December. He can be found now on OpenSea and is in several NFT Discord groups.
