“This song is totally inspired by the pandemic and the strange period of lockdowns and social distancing we all experienced. I was especially touched by how this affected many older people who have had to stay isolated without a chance to meet their loved ones. That’s a devastating scenario to go through in what might be your last times in this world. In the song, I sing how I would hold your hand, bring you flowers and come inside and hug you - when it’s all over, dedicated to all of those who I haven’t had a chance to meet in a long time”, Eeppi elaborates on the story behind the song.

“When It’s All Over” features Finnish top musicians and production. Eeppi Ursin plays piano in addition to vocals.

Other musicians include an internationally renowned guitarist Petteri Sariola, bassist Timo Hirvonen - a jazz club owner and “Jaco Pastorius of Finland”, and drummer and recording engineer Jyri Sariola who has also filmed and directed the music video.

Eepi Ursin is a platinum-selling, award-winning singer, songwriter, and pianist with a versatile career. Her first solo album "Yellow Page Girl", released in 2009, launched the career of a strong and uniquely-voiced artist. Eepi is also featured as a guest vocalist on numerous records and has toured around the world with acclaimed artists such as Leroy Jones, Club For Five, and UMO Jazz Orchestra. In New York City she has had the chance to debut her creativity at various pop and jazz venues including Rockwood Music Hall, The Bitter End, and the Scandinavia House - The Nordic Center in America.
