

Private Jet Industry Transforming From New Demand, 72% October Increase Posted by New Flight Charters

Flyers turning from jet card and private jet membership programs driving private jet charter company flights +45.9% year-to-date over 2020 and +53.0% over 2019.

DENVER, CO, UNITED STATES, December 3, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- New Flight Charters, a nationwide leader in on-demand private jet charters since 2004, announced an 72.3% year-over-year increase for October and 68.9% over 2019, more than doubling the industry's increases for October.

By comparison the Part 135 charter industry increased 33.0% for October according to TraqPak data released by ARGUS International.

When demand is outpacing supply, having wide availability of vetted quality aircraft and operators in every corner of the country for our clients is key,”

New Flight Charters' president, Rick Colson

Charter Industry Availability

The company attributes its increases in part to its full-industry aircraft availability, not limited by a defined fleet or specific operator arrangements. The full charter industry includes 2,722 charter jets in the U.S., plus 778 executive turboprops for economical regional travel. “When demand is outpacing supply, having wide availability of vetted quality aircraft and operators in every corner of the country for our clients is key,” commented New Flight Charters' president, Rick Colson.

New Flight Charters posts 72% increase for October as flyers turn from jet card membership programs

Flyers can choose their specific aircraft from an array of options and quotes for each flight, sourced per their own preferences for each trip including size, age, make, ratings and amenities, and pay as they go; no membership fee or advance bulk purchase commitment.

Notably the company received considerable interest from jet card and membership program fliers, turning from their recent limitations, changing terms and costs. New Flight Charters' Best Price Guarantee remains in place during the industry's record-breaking Fall and holiday seasons.
