

Culver City Film Festival 2021 Welcomes Filmmakers Back To The Theatres

Culver City Film Festival screening over 350 Films from around the world

MARINA DEL REY, CA, UNITED STATES, December 3, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Culver City Film Festival 2021 is fast becoming one of the most anticipated events of the year! The annual film festival, organized by Festival Director Jon Gursha and Programming Director Peter Greene, welcomes independent filmmakers back to the theatres. Culver City Film Festival 2021 begins with a kick-off party on Thursday evening, December 2nd at Sorry Not Sorry Bar and Restaurant in Los Angeles. Screenings begin on Friday, December 3rd at Cinemark 18 and XD at The Promenade at Howard Hughes Center (HHLA) in Los Angeles, and will continue through Thursday, December 9th. A "Best of the Fest" awards ceremony and closing night party will follow.

"We encourage filmmakers and audiences back to the theatres as we have two screens and over 350 films from around the world for everyone to enjoy." "We feel we have created a very special film festival" said Gursha. The event has attracted the attention of individuals as well as international film distributors. The independent filmmaking industry has undoubtedly grown to become a significant part of the global movie market. This year's Culver City Film Festival will stream some of the Official Selections of the festival for international audiences on the ShortsDaily Roku channel.
