"Individual achievements and creativity are celebrated at Infused Innovations," says Jeffrey Wilhelm. "At our all-hands meetings, we will schedule staff to talk about recent work they have done, and everyone is empowered to blog, participate in webinars or podcasts, and be active in their communities. We reward our employees for taking part in these activities with gift cards and recognition. We find that their collaborative work and sharing model brings out the best in our staff."

Jeffrey Wilhelm, CEO

Jeffrey goes on to say, "Because Infused Innovations has always been a 100% remote/work from home company, we measure employees not based on "time in chair" but on meaningful contributions, customer experience and satisfaction, and quality outcomes. We implicitly trust our staff to be adults, communicate effectively with others on their team, and do what is in our customers' best interests. By having an all-hands meeting where people can share their contributions and work together, we lift up what we value and celebrate it."
