

With Restaurant Supplies Hard to Come By, Innovative Solutions Are Starting to Appear

Heavy-duty menu covers are the perfect solution to global supply chain problems.

EINPresswire.com/ -- With the recent global supply chain issues, many restaurateurs are having a hard time finding much-needed products for their establishments. One item that's been especially elusive is menu covers. Many are looking towards alternatives to fill this need. One company, StoreSMART, has created heavy duty, vinyl plastic menu covers as a substitute for their popular, but hard-to-find, rigid toploaders. Many rigid toploaders are currently unavailable, so these vinyl plastic menu covers are the perfect workaround.

Keep your menus looking good.

StoreSMART's Vinyl Plastic Menu Covers make menus look almost as enticing as the food. After all, a fresh, clean-looking menu reflects well on the restaurant. Each protector is crafted of thick, durable, vinyl plastic, ensuring that the menus are comfortable to hold and not too floppy. Folded menus pop right back into shape.

"Due to supply chain back-ups, we were having a hard time securing the material for our older menu cover styles," says Reenie Feingold, founder and CEO of StoreSMART. "So, I looked at what material we had on hand and decided to create these Heavy Duty Vinyl Menu Covers. Our customers have been happy with this amazing substitute."

Restaurant owners stand to save on reprinting costs by using these protective holders, too. The corners will remain crisp and the durable material resists wear and tear. Liquids and food wipe right off cleanly without harming the menu inside. There are no seams where food can hide, making it very easy to keep menus clean. Since they're made in the USA, these menu covers are in stock and ready to ship to restaurant owners who are struggling with material and transportation shortages.
