Hopper dryers are also called hot air dryers, and they make the perfect choice for eradicating moisture from the surface of pellets of non-hygroscopic resin, before melting them. Manufacturers dealing in such products are well aware of the continuous struggle, and know that the failure to dry pellets properly left undesirable level of moisture, spoiling the finished product. Hopper dryers are highly used to dry plastics and other polymers as they are capable of removing moisture directly right at the top of the machine. Any type of moisture in the plastic resins no matter hygroscopic or non-hygroscopic, hampers the quality and the surface finishing of the molded parts and products.
