

PLANTING PROFITS ANNOUNCES NEW CROP PLANNING TOOL TO STRESS TEST YOUR 2022 CROP MIX AND WIN THE ACRE WARS

This holiday season find peace of mind unscrambling your 2022 crop planning while everyone else is scrambling...

DENVER, CO, USA, December 14, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Now that harvest is in the bin, producers all across the continent are going through their annual gyrations and gymnastics of deciding their 2022 crop mix. Some have planning down pat. Some can use a hand. Some are inbetweeners. But wherever a producer lands on this continuum, crop planning is the seed stage in the annual farming cycle. Crop planning, like everything else in farming, is driven by the beat of continuous improvement.

“

Here’s what you get... Less stress and more control during planning season and beyond. More time for family, leisure, social activities. More time for chores.
Peace of mind...”

Just-in-time for planning time, Planting Profits® a Colorado agricultural technology startup, kicks off its groundbreaking online crop planning advisory service.

Through December, the Company will assist producers across the U.S. and Canada in developing their 2022 crop plans. This advisory service pilot is free in exchange for feedback on the service.

Gary Schneider, CEO and co-founder of Planting Profits, explains, “This month we’re piloting our advisory service.

We’re working individually, online with as many producers as possible helping them develop their 2022 plans. The pilot is also a warm up for the soft launch of our new crop planning software later this month. It will be available to all producers for free.”

Schneider continues, “The advisory service that we’re piloting is a new service category. It starts with planting intentions. It combines on-farm knowledge, “musts” and “wants” and operational
