Hadassah-WIZO (CHW), a non-political, nonpartisan national network of dedicated volunteers and professionals who support education, healthcare, and social services in Israel and Canada, launched an end of year campaign, with proceeds supporting a graduate dorm at CHW Nahalal Youth Village.

When you purchase a gift from our Giving Catalogue, you ensure that basic needs are provided to make the dorm really feel like home for these young people who have nowhere else to go.”

Lisa Colt-Kotler, CHW CEO

CHW's end of year campaign, Home for the Holidays, will help furnish a pre-fab dorm for graduates. At the end of a year marked by uncertainty, the generosity of CHW supporters will be a source of comfort by providing a safe home for the holidays.

CHW National President Elayna Latsky said, “Together, we can ensure that HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS gifts are synonymous with the comforts of home.”

Graduate students called CHW Nahalal Youth Village their home for four years while they completed their high school diploma. Sadly, many don't have another place to call home. Some have come from abroad, while others were removed from highly toxic home situations.

The graduate dorm funded by CHW is a transition residence before the next stage of life to begin National Service, IDF training, extended study, or employment. Often graduates stay a short time, while others need prolonged visits.

CHW's campaign includes an extensive Giving Catalogue, featuring all the items that help make a house a home. Items range from bowls and plates to an oven and a washing machine, and from bedding and towels to couches and kitchenettes. You can even purchase the pre-fab dorm itself. There is a wide variety of price points, making the catalogue inclusive for all budgets.

"When you purchase a gift from our Giving Catalogue, you ensure that basic needs are provided to make the dorm really feel like home for these young people who have nowhere else to go," said Lisa Colt-Kotler, CHW CEO.

Home for the Holidays runs until the end of December and is a great way to ensure you receive a tax receipt for charitable giving in 2021.
