The goal is to be an advocate for these mothers and connect them to available resources that provide education, counseling, goal setting, and other life skills. Founder and President Patti Johnson said about the day, “It was very nice. VA Premier Pawn is a great place. What a blessing for these mothers to experience the community support this holiday season.”

VA Premier Pawn decorated an Angel Tree for customers, friends, and the local community to sponsor the Angel Moms and help make their Christmas wishes come true. Donald Rogers explained, “There is always a focus this time of year on the children, which is wonderful, but we would like to see these moms who are working so hard for their family, feel appreciated too." A raffle was also held to help raise funds for the charity and Angel gifts. Participants gathered at Rogers' store on Saturday to receive their gifts and enjoy the Christmas spirit with one another.
