The history of the WWETT Show begins in 1979 when a tiny, trimmed-down newspaper was developed and mailed to around 12,000 septic "pumpers" (portable restroom operation technicians) throughout the Midwest. That little paper consisted of a handful of advertisers, a few classified ads, some makeshift editorial, and a crudely-drawn comic of even cruder subject matter. That was the first edition of "The Midwest Pumper".

By 1981 a conference had grown out of it – The Liquid Waste Hauler's Equipment & Trade Show. It consisted of a few hundred attendees and couple dozen exhibitors. After over 30 years of success, the trade show had grown into one of the largest trade shows in the United States. In 2015, the Pumper & Cleaner Environmental Expo International was changed to the WWETT Show – the Water and Wastewater Equipment, Treatment & Transport Show, to better represent the scope of the show.

Satellite has attended this convention for decades and is excited to be back in person in 2022.
