This new partnership will enable deal sponsors who are raising capital using Capital Engine’s investment management technology solution to seamlessly accept IRA capital through Alto's platform.

“Private markets are rapidly transforming and have surpassed public markets by some measures to become the more popular way for companies to raise money in the US,” said Bryan Smith, CEO of Capital Engine®. “We’re very excited about the partnership with Alto because it provides our clients and deal sponsors broader reach to private capital and also benefits IRA holders, allowing them to participate in investment opportunities that would otherwise not have been available to them.”

Capital Engine® software helps leverage the opportunity to better originate and showcase a diverse selection of private investment deals, making it easy for Alto IRA investors to put their funds to work i.e. a deal’s potential viability can be better assessed, market appetite determined and transaction promptly closed.

“Alto and Capital Engine share a mission of providing new ways for startups and entrepreneurs to raise capital and enabling everyday people to take part in these opportunities once only available to the wealthy and well-connected,” said Tara Fung, Chief Revenue Officer at Alto. “Individuals should be able to choose how they want to invest their retirement funds, including making investments into private securities, which can add meaningful diversification in increasingly volatile public markets.”
