EINPresswire.com/ -- The North American text analytics market is influenced by several drivers, restraints and opportunities. Technologies such as big data analytics in the market are considered to be the major drivers. On the other hand, companies have now come to an understanding that automating data analysis plays an eminent role in helping companies keep up with huge amount of data and use the same to make insightful decisions. The need for improving consumer experience via CRM (Customer Relationship Management) and initiating effective marketing and promotional activities is also driving the market. However, lack of awareness has hindered the market growth to a greater extent. Vendors active in the text analytics industry are continuously discovering and refining the current architecture, to provide their endcustomers a more efficient solution, which in turn would provide greater opportunities for the market.
