

'What Dewey Do?' – one of most popular financial planning podcasts in America

2022 offers even more guests to offer you the best in financial planning with What Dewey Do Podcast

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN, UNITED STATES, December 29, 2021

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The COVID-19 pandemic changed our saving and spending habits as businesses across the nation were forced to close – either temporarily or permanently – and millions of people lost their jobs. And, as the U.S. economy begins to recover, many people are still struggling to rebuild their financial lives.

That's why Dewey Steffen, CEO and Chief Investment Officer at Great Lakes Wealth, wanted to do something to help anxious investors improve their financial literacy and feel empowered when it comes to their financial futures. So, in the summer of 2020, he partnered with Metro Detroit radio personality Kyle "Bogey" Bogenschutz to launch the podcast "What Dewey Do?" and, for season two, he teamed up with WWJ midday news anchor Brooke Allen.

"We launched this podcast to help inform the community on the complicated world of finance and help people lead happier, wealthier lives. And we're just getting started," said Steffen, a licensed investment professional with 25 years of experience.

"Some people invest without doing their homework or understanding what they're doing. They just go to their phone, download an app, and invest in something they heard about on Reddit or another website. Through this podcast, I want to elevate investors in our community by providing reliable and researched information."

“What Dewey Do?,” which was named one of the 2021 Most Popular Financial Planning Podcasts in America by Yahoo! Finance, covers all things timely and timeless in the financial world. In less than two years, Great Lakes Wealth has released a total of 50 episodes with more than 17,000 downloads.

The podcast has covered topics such as COVID-19’s impact on investing, saving for retirement, the pros and cons of cryptocurrency, estate planning, the future of the stock market, investment opportunities in cannabis, financial planning for college, and more.

Some of their guests have included:

- Kevin O’Leary, Mr. Wonderful from ABC’s “Shark Tank”
- Darren McCarty, former Detroit Red Wing and four-time Stanley Cup Champion
- Casey Hurbis, Chief Marketing Officer at Rocket Mortgage
- Anthony and Michael Tomey, co-owners of 50 Jimmy John’s franchises and 8 Mile Vodka
- Mike Sullivan and Kyle Bogenschutz, co-owners of Brand25 Media and Metro Detroit Golfers, the largest golf community in Michigan
