Home Office Furniture Market

The global market is majorly driven by the rapid outbreak of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic and the subsequent preference for work-from-home models across the corporate sector. This is supported by the mandatory lockdowns imposed by governments across the globe in an attempt to contain the spread of the virus. This has propelled the demand for home office furniture on the global level to maintain business continuity. Moreover, there has been a considerable preference for versatile and multi-functional home office furniture among individuals as they offer enhanced portability while saving space. In line with this, numerous key players are also launching furniture with ultra-modern designs that assist in relieving the strain and fatigue of users, which is gaining widespread prominence among professionals with long working hours. Also, the introduction of connected office desks in the market that are commonly equipped with sensors that record space utilization data and assist in correcting the seating posture of individuals is creating a positive outlook for the market.
