Rapid urbanization, increasing renovation activities, up-gradation of kitchen cabinets and vanities, and increasing preference of the plastic cabinet in offices, hospitals, educational institutes, laboratories, & libraries drive the global plastic cabinet market. Along with this, as plastic cabinets are easily mobile, can serve multi-purposes, and have low prices compared to cabinets made of other material, also boost the demand for this product in the global market.

However, plastic cabinets are not bio-degradable and eco-friendly in nature, which can cause environmental hazards. Therefore, increasing environmental concerns poses a threat to the global plastic cabinet market. Also, plastic cabinets are not sturdy and are not able to sustain much pressure or heavy load, thereby hampering the growth of the plastic cabinet market globally.

Although, the penetration of the e-commerce industry has paved many opportunities for the growth of the plastic cabinet market. Manufacturers are focusing on selling their products through online portals coupled with aggressive marketing strategies. These efforts, with more research & development in the plastic cabinet to make it sturdier, can uplift the global market growth of the plastic cabinet market.
