Key highlights from the report

The North America follicular lymphoma treatment market is anticipated to dominate the global market. The growth is attributed to the rising demand for first-line therapy, high medical reimbursement facilities, and technological advancement in countries such as the U.S and Canada.

The targeted therapy is expected to register significant market share among the other segments. This is attributed to the widespread application coupled with efficient healthcare outcomes. The diagnostic methods are improved, and the public and health care professionals are well aware of the potential benefits of targeted therapy impacting the growth.

The market is driven by rapid product approval. For instance, in June 2020, The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved tazemetostat for relapsed or refractory follicular lymphoma (FL) for adults. The clinical pipeline also shows positive results, which would further propel the market in the near future.
