- The Covid-19 pandemic disrupted the healthcare system due to nationwide lockdown and disrupted the supply chain. There were limitations and bans on medical procedures and selected surgeries. These restrictions reduced the demand for single-arm medical pendants.
- Moreover, single-arm medical pendant manufacturing companies faced issues such as production at full capacity, in-person product demonstrations, and conferences due to restriction on social gathering.
- Lockdown in Asia-Pacific countries such as India and China delayed the production and shipments of single-arm medical pendant products. This hampered the overall revenue of the global market.
