size of each grape. North America is expected to account for a significant portion of the market during the forecast period. Because malted barley is used in brewing, the growing beer industry is a key growth factor for this region. According to the Brewers Association, the number of breweries in the United States increased by 16.6% in 2016 to 5,301, owing to increased demand for craft beer in the country.

Market Overview:

Gibberellins are a group of plant chemicals that control many plant developmental processes, such as root growth, dormancy, germination, flowering, leaf and even fruit development. The name is derived from Gibberella fujikuroi, a hormone-producing fungus in the phylum Ascomycota that causes excessive growth and poor yield in rice plants. The most characteristic effects of gibberellins on shoot growth are increased inter-node extension, increased leaf-growth and enhanced apical dominance.
