

A top corporate trainer is revolutionizing the way managers motivate their employees

Discover how to motivate your employees and improve the culture of your organization

MARYLAND, UNITED STATES, May 2, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "Employees that feel valued and appreciated for their work are more driven, accountable, and productive." Addison Solutions Academy, a pioneer in corporate training, understands this and is pleased to introduce its innovative workshop for supervisors and managers called, Motivating Your Workforce. It was created specifically to assist busy managers and supervisors in understanding what their employees want and provide a starting point for developing champions. The one-day workshop will help supervisors and managers create a more lively, loyal, and enthusiastic workplace.

Participants in this ground-breaking workshop will discover the meaning of motivation and various topics such as describing the most prevalent motivational theories, learning when and how to employ various types of motivators, creating a motivating environment, and creating a career that motivates you.

The one-day class is intended to be interactive, engaging, and personalized. The recommended class size of five individuals ensures that participants get the most out of the course. Similarly, the workshops are given by high-quality trainers with a wealth of knowledge and experience. Addison Solutions Academy's team of subject matter experts leads businesses and employees with proven learning strategies to develop learning experiences that allow participants to increase their knowledge, feel engaged, and enhance their performance. Furthermore, during the Motivating Your Workforce workshop, participants will gain insights into defining motivation, motivating and supervising, setting objectives, understanding the importance of values, putting skills to work, and how to create a motivating work environment.
