

Grey Matter President | CEO Chris Holmes invited to be part of MissionLink.Next Spring Cohort

Holmes to join the non-profit association's exclusive network of government leaders, industry founders, and CEOs as part of the association's spring cohort.

ALEXANDRIA, VA, UNITED STATES, January 20, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Chris Holmes, the President | CEO and founder of Grey Matter, the Alexandria, VA-based software company behind the Grey Matter next service management network, has accepted an invitation to join MissionLink.Next's 2022 spring cohort.

Grey Matter is a platform for enhancing hybrid operations with an insight first approach based on service mesh, security, and automation.

The chance to engage with, and learn from, some of the brightest minds in the commercial and national security technology spaces presents an opportunity of unmeasurable value.”

Chris Holmes

MissionLink.Next member companies are providers of a number of critical national security-relevant cyber, artificial intelligence, autonomy, internet of things, and emerging technologies. The association seeks to facilitate an improved ‘public-private partnership’ enabling stronger collaboration in addressing the nation’s most pressing national security challenges.

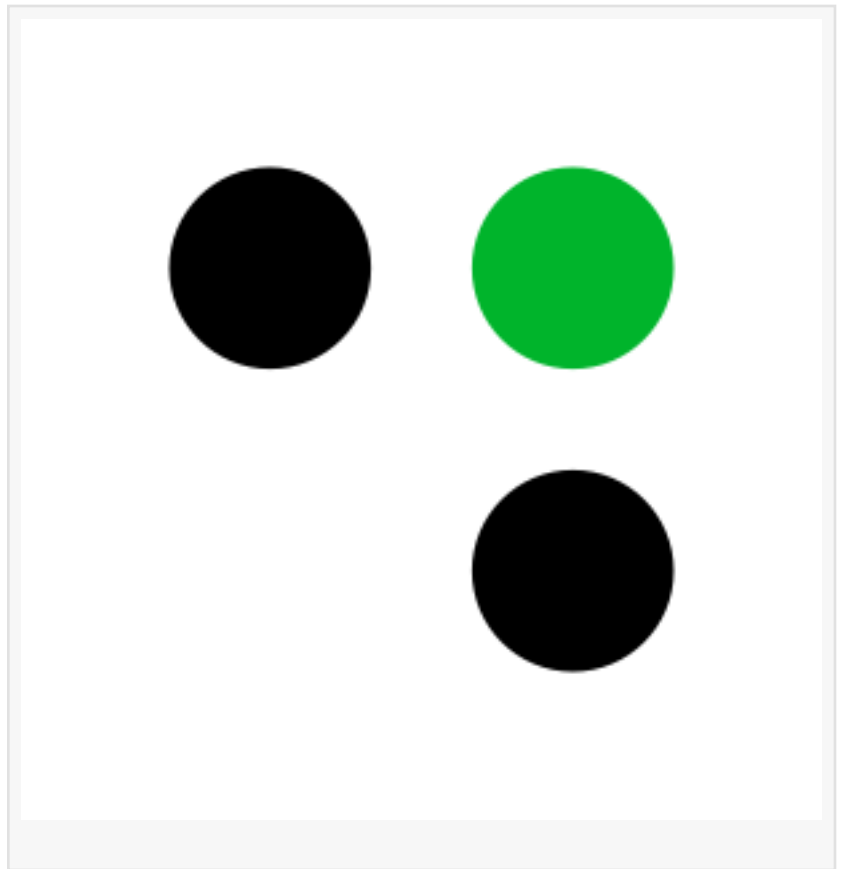

With this invitation, Holmes joins a cadre of over 450 C-suite executives that have attended the program since 2010. Said Holmes, “I am incredibly excited and humbled by the opportunity to part of this spring’s MissionLink.Next cohort. The chance to engage with, and learn from, some of the brightest minds in the commercial and national security technology spaces presents an opportunity of unmeasurable value for myself, the Grey Matter company, and our government partners.”

About Grey Matter
