Drug Discovery Services Market Overview

Research and development activity has grown significantly within the pharmaceutical and biopharmaceutical industry. Pharmaceutical, biopharmaceutical, and medical device companies invest heavily within the development of novel drugs and devices, with most of the expenditure targeting phase III clinical trial and therefore the preclinical stages of drug development. Growth in research and development expenditure, fueled by the necessity for varied preclinical and clinical services during the drug discovery and development process, is one among the main factors propelling the drug discovery services market, globally.

Further increases in research and development spending within the coming years will provide a big boost to drug discovery and development activities, which can make sure the growth of the drug discovery services market within the forecast period.

Drug discovery and development involve high costs because of the high attrition rate of drug candidates in development. Since R&D for a few rare diseases is extremely challenging and requires a selected group of individuals to conduct a clinical test, drug R&D processes are often susceptible to failure.
