As a growing standard for companies of all industries, a SOC 2 Type II audit is intended to evaluate the description of the system, the suitability of the design, and operating effectiveness of controls.

Safety does not only apply to physical aspects of a move, but also to the security of our systems, the protection of our customer's data, and the dependability of our processes and systems."

Justin Walsh

The enterprise began their active 4-month audit period in May 2021, in which the company's data security, privacy, availability, standards for communication and integrity, and confidentiality controls were thoroughly assessed.

An AICPA Soc 2 Type II audit provides validation to the organization and its users that the organization's service commitments and its internal controls are accurately represented by the organization.

"As our first core value, safety is of the utmost importance to our company," said Justin Walsh, Chief Innovation Officer at New World Van Lines. "Safety does not only apply to physical aspects of a move, but also to the security of our systems, the protection of our customer's data, and the dependability of our processes and systems. The successful completion of the SOC 2 audit serves as confirmation to our employees, our clients, and our transferees that we are operating in a secure and dependable way."

The extensive report provided by the auditors confirmed New World's effective management of system controls throughout their operations. Without any exceptions found, New World's customers can rest assured privacy and data protection will remain as a top priority of the company throughout the entirety of their move.

In addition to the completion of the SOC 2 Type II report, New World's passion for excellence can be seen through its many memberships to industry-leading organizations such as the American Trucking Association, American Trucking Association Moving and Storage Conference, and the Worldwide ERC.
