herbal products, so it is important to follow the doctor's instructions carefully. Patients who have a liver problem should avoid methadone as it can affect the liver. Those with certain medical conditions should consult a medical professional to ensure that they are not pregnant or breastfeeding.

Increased occurrences of chronic pain and increased acceptance of post-surgical pain treatment for cancer patients are expected to drive methadone hydrochloride market growth over the forecast period.

Furthermore, widespread adoption in rehabilitation centers for the treatment of drug addict patients is expected to fuel the methadone hydrochloride market throughout the forecast period.

The Epitome of the COVID-19 Aftermath

The global methadone hydrochloride market showed an upward trend due to the prevalence of the COVID-19 pandemic. The pandemic-driven rise in health consciousness has instigated a large portion of the population to increase drug consumption against various seasonal infections, thus, fuelling the cases of drug overdose. However, the market's business is one to watch in the projected timeframe as pharmaceutical companies start to revamp their production capabilities and the vaccination tally rises.

Key Takeaways

The methadone hydrochloride market is anticipated to grow at a CAGR of 4.0% during the forecast period owing to the rapid adoption across the healthcare sector and growing drug approvals. For instance, in November 2021, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved the Bupivacaine-Meloxicam (Zynrelef, Heron Therapeutics) combination as it reduced both opioid use and pain in patients undergoing hernia repair.

Given the territorial landscape, the North American region is establishing itself as a major player in the global methadone hydrochloride market, owing to rapid adoption in rehabilitation centers and a high prevalence of opioid abuse.

Also standing out in the global methadone hydrochloride market is the Asia Pacific region, which is driven by increasing drug addiction in urban areas and the growing use of methadone in post-surgery treatments.
