Market - Analysis of Market Size, Share & Trends for 2014 – 2020 and Forecasts to 2031" which is anticipated to reach USD 218.03 billion by 2031. According to a study by Fatpos Global, the market is anticipated to portray a CAGR of 10.27% between 2021 and 2031.
According to the report, the growing penetration of connected devices and the existence of a many consumers base are the key trends accelerating market growth. Additionally, the growing automation of refrigerated warehouses is anticipated to improve the demand for the product. Automation in warehouses is attained with the application of cloud technology, conveyor belts, robots, energy management systems, and truck loading automation. Integration of workforce management solutions for picking optimization & workforce forecast has led to reduced labor costs.

"Raising awareness and increasing concern towards the low ozone depletion potential (ODP) and low global warming potential (GWP) refrigerants to tackle environmental and social facets coupled with increasing demand for energy-efficient natural refrigerants are the key components boosting the market. Inorganic refrigerants such as ammonia, CO2, and hydrocarbon-based refrigerants are the most popular natural refrigerants that are being increasingly preferred by end-users for their energy efficiency, low price, and low GDP & ODP", said a lead analyst at Fatpos Global.
