Decline in greenhouse emissions is expected to drive growth of the global hybrid electric jet market during the forecast period. Greenhouse gases such as methane, carbon dioxide, and nitrous oxide are major causes of global warming and air pollution. According to the Europe Aviation Safety Agency (EASA), electric engine utilization in jets is expected to decrease nitrous oxide by 90% and carbon dioxide by 75%. According to the same source, it is expected to reduce noise levels to 65% by 2050. Furthermore, hybrid electric jets save a lot of money on fuel costs and hence are cost-efficient. Thus, these factors are expected to boost the global hybrid electric jet market growth in the near future. Furthermore, technological advancements in electric aircraft are expected to accelerate growth of the global hybrid electric jet market in the near future.
