This marks the beginning of what they believe will be a successful and effective merger for all parties.

H. O. Wolding's new orientation pay package compensates drivers with $1000 per week for their first 8 weeks of driving. This initiative was brought about to help new drivers focus 100% on the task at hand, and worry less about any financial stress they may have.

Supplementing this new driver pay package, H. O. Wolding has also increased their per-mile pay rate for every experience level, with a range of $0.45/mile - $0.63/ mile for solo drivers, and $0.54/mile - $0.70/mile for team drivers before monthly bonuses. Their average first year driver earned $61,000 in 2020, with the top 20% earning an average of $80,500. Additionally, their safety bonus offers $0.01/mile for drivers after their first year behind the wheel, along with a performance bonus between $0.025-$0.095/practical mile. Their benefits packages offer a variety of provider choices, with affordable rates, along with paid vacation ranging between 1-5 weeks per year, depending on seniority.

By increasing their per-mile pay rates, along with safety and performance bonuses, H. O. Wolding is looking to recruit new drivers dedicated to life on the road. Safety, performance, and hard work are a few of the key-characteristics they look for in a new driver. Through improved pay and benefits, they hope to attract the very best drivers in the business.
