it primarily runs itself. The owner is selling the business because he is looking to retire and leave the country. This business qualifies for SBA loan financing and is a great chance to get into the hydroponics industry. With plenty of parking, all inventory included, and has an excellent reputation.

For those who are unfamiliar, hydroponics is a method of gardening and plant growth without the use of soil. Rather than using soil, the plants flourish from water enhanced with nutrients. As a result, hydroponic facilities can grow a wide range of plants or crops at any time of the year.

Hydroponics is the solution for growing produce that is not in season and supplying fresh ingredients to local restaurants and consumers. In addition, to produce, hydroponic systems can create beautiful plants, flowers, and herbs. Hydroponic systems initially take some time to set up but require little work afterward, making the business self-fulfilling.

According to a study by Grandview Research, the hydroponics market was valued at 2.1 billion in 2020 and expects 19.7% growth from 2021 to 2028. The hydroponics industry will continue to grow over time because of its advantages compared to traditional soil farming. One study completed at Aberystwyth University in 2018 concluded that tomatoes grown in water yielded a higher quality result, and they utilized water more efficiently than the tomatoes grown in soil.
