The global food service sector is rapidly expanding with the rising number of people preferring to go out to cafes, restaurants, and fast-food joints with their friends and family. Evolving lifestyles of people owing to hectic work schedules and rising per capita income is one of the major reasons people choose to eat at quick-service restaurants (QSRs) and fast-food outlets.

Moreover, spending time with family and friends on weekends is also propelling the growth of the food service sector and subsequently increasing the demand for disposable paper cups globally.

Restrictions on the usage of single-use plastic products is propelling the market growth

The rising preference for takeaway services and online food delivery services, owing to the convenience and an increase in internet penetration, is driving the food service sector. This, in turn, is propelling the growth of the disposable paper cups market across developed and developing countries. Over the past few years, there has been a growing inclination towards on-the-go beverages and takeout drinks like coffee, soda, and thick shakes, due to the changing eating habits of customers. A significant number of people prefer having coffee or tea during their breakfasts, after lunch, and in the evening to energize themselves. People in the corporates working for extended hours highly prefer having tea or coffee during their working hours. Owing to these factors, the demand for on-the-go coffee and tea has increased significantly. Therefore, with the rising number of tea and coffee enthusiasts, the demand for disposable paper cups is rapidly increasing.

Impact of COVID-19 Pandemic on Disposable Paper Cups Market

The COVID-19 pandemic has restricted many industries' operations and hampered several businesses globally. Shutdown of manufacturing facilities and global trade activities restricted the movement of good, thereby affecting supply of raw materials as well as product demand. Government imposed lockdowns and shift to work-from-home model by major companies, further affected the demand for disposable paper cups. However, lifting of restrictions coupled with the progress of vaccination rates across the globe is expected to aid the recovery of the global disposable paper cups market.
