The Moisture Curing Adhesives Market size is expected to reach USD 9.60

Billion in 2028 and register a CAGR of 7.2% over the forecast period, according to the latest report by Reports and Data. Global market revenue growth is driven by key factors such as ongoing developments in material science technologies, rising demand for personal vehicles, and increasing application of moisture curing adhesives in wood working industries. Moisture curing adhesive is a type of adhesive that absorbs moisture to cause curing reaction. It is created using non-volatile prepolymers of urethane. Moisture cure adhesives mainly work on surfaces that are difficult to bond such as untreated metals, wood-based, or plastics surfaces that do not contain polyethylene or polypropylene.

Some Key Highlights From the Report:

In April 2020, Dow launched DOWSIL EA-3838 Fast Adhesive, which is an advanced primer less silicone adhesive that offers strong bond to multiple clean substrates through room-temperature cure within five minutes.

Polyurethane segment accounted for largest revenue share in the global market in 2020. This can be attributed to increasing demand for polyurethane in building and construction sector due to various benefits such as extreme compression and tension load-bearing capacity, and weather resistance property.

North America accounted for significantly larger revenue share among the regional markets in the global market in 2020. Increasing activities across construction and wood-coating industries and robust presence of key market players are major factors driving revenue growth of the market in this region.
