/EINPresswire.com/ -- The major factors that fuel the growth of the market are the increasing incidence of cardiovascular diseases globally along with the increasing number of obese and diabetic patients globally. In addition, increasing geriatric population and incorporation of minimally invasive technologies in cardiovascular products supplement the market growth. However, dearth of skilled professionals and stringent regulations restrain the growth of the pre-clinicals stage cardiovascular pipeline products market. Moreover, untapped regions and development of advanced cardiovascular diagnostic tools will offer lucrative opportunities for the market.
